

BRYAN'S SALARY TOO SMALL; THAT'S WHY HE LECTURES

Gets $12,000 as Secretary of State, but It Costs Him $20,000.

PAYS ALL THE BILLS.

Refuses to Charge to the Government Expenses for State Entertainments.

(Special from a Staff Correspondent of The Evening World.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 14.—The Secretary of State, Mr. Bryan, cannot live on his salary, but has to go on a Chautauque lecturing tour in that he is spending at the rate of $10,000 a year and receiving $12,000 from the Government.

He refuses to charge to the State Department expense account large sums expended in social entertaining and in liberal traveling expenses, but pays out of his own pocket. The Secretary has taken high moral ground as to what is proper and what is improper reimbursement out of Government funds.

There always has been liberal latitude allowed Secretaries of State in expenses for the entertainment of foreign diplomats and visitors, whether done privately or publicly. Of all the Government service the State Department is subject to least inspection and restriction in the charging up of expenses.

RIGID RULES FOR EXPENSES SET BY BRYAN.

But Mr. Bryan has set for himself rigid rules based on his own view of propriety. He pays for diplomatic dinners given at his own house. He pays for all manner of small semi-official expenses incurred in Washington. He has not yet charged the Government for the entertaining he did for the Brazilian Minister, Dr. Muller, on his visit to this country.

While the Government paid many of the expenses for Dr. Muller's tour of the country in charge of Assistant Secretary Malone, Mr. Bryan bore the expense of the Washington dinner he gave out of his own pocket.

When traveling, Secretary Bryan limits the expense charged to the Government to lowest figures. When he goes to California or to the West, he is paid by the Government for the expense of the trip. He is paid for the expense of the trip to California, his expense account was turned to the Government. For a fifteen day tour to Sacramento and return on Government business for two persons—Mr. Bryan and his private secretary—the expense voucher in the State Department is $10 plus the actual railroad and Pullman fare.

This figure of $10 per day each. It includes hotel bills, dining cars, cab fares, tips and a considerable amount for telegrams. All his dining car meals are limited to $1. Every charge is carefully itemized, and only those that are absolutely necessary and wholly for Government service are entered.

PAYS OUT OF HIS POCKET FOR THE NECESSARY EXPENSES.

The actual expenses of the trip were $100, the amount charged to the Government, but Mr. Bryan held that the entire amount was either personal or not necessary in Government service.

Part of the time in California he was entertained by Governor Johnson and this fact tended to keep down his total expenses.

Mr. Bryan pays $4,000 per year house rent in Washington and the cost of upkeep for his large house is heavy, but he bears it all himself. His expenses outside of Washington are considerable as the winter home he is building at Miami, Florida, is costing considerably more than anticipated. His Texas friends have also required more outlay than revenue.

Therefore extra income became an absolute necessity to him and Chautauque lectures offered the most lucrative. Mr. Bryan returned to Washington to-day. He will spend the week in the State Department and leave next Saturday afternoon after the close of office hours for Wilson, Indiana, to deliver a lecture to the Presbyterian Assembly at that place on Sunday. It is pointed out at the Department that previous Secretaries absented themselves from the office for as much as three months at a time without notice being taken of it.

WONDERFUL HOW RESINOL CURED ITCHING HUMOR

New York, N. Y., May 19, 1913.—"I was taken with a terrible itching and burning in my hands. They would crack and bleed. I could not do my work. I had to walk the floor at night. I tried— and but no relief, until I used Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment—then I could go to sleep. The Resinol treatment is something wonderful, for if you could see my hands you would never think that they were ever sore—they are so nice and soft, and I can do all my work now." (Signed) Mrs. Wm. Sutherland, 155 East 71st St.

For 18 years Resinol has been a doctor's prescription and household remedy for eczema, ringworm, pimples, dandruff, wounds, burns, sores and piles. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap are sold by all druggists. Trial free; Dept. G. B. Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

HOW TO BUILD A HOME WITH YOUR FIRST $1,000

Evening World Makes an Investigation In the Interests of the Homebuilder

Answers to the Question "How to Go About It," to Avoid Losses and Make the Very Most of Limited Savings.

Practical Suggestions for the Homebuilder of Modest Means—Points on the Proper Selection of the Building Lot.

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

If you only had $1,000 and wanted a home, how would you go about it? These are the questions that confront the man of modest means if he would have a home of his own, having saved $1,000 cash.

What arrangements can I make for getting more money, having no other means?

How much could I properly spare from my earnings each month?

In accordance with this how much should my lot cost?

How much should my building cost?

Where would it be most desirable to build?

What is the most direct method to begin immediate operation?

In this series of articles the Evening World will present facts found after investigation in the interest of the would-be homebuilder so that he may avoid the pitfalls that confront the small investor who can ill-afford to lose his hard-earned savings.

All the illustrations will be of buildings already erected or in the course of erection, and the cost furnished will be for buildings within a radius of thirty-five miles from the center of the city.

If a man wants to build a home one of the greatest mistakes made is in purchasing his lot and then letting it stand idle for any length of time without improving it.

Every day it is thus idle it begins to cost money. Therefore the location of the property, in the beginning, is the first consideration. It is well to note this fact—that the cost of a house varies in different sections. For example, a house in Long Island that costs $2,000 to build, will in Westchester or New Jersey cost $2,500, while at Great Neck you could not build the same house for less than $3,000.

So the locality is of utmost consideration in the expense of building. Sometimes a lot which costs more in one locality with good facilities for building is cheaper than a lower-priced lot where the actual construction costs more.

FINDING THE LOT THE FIRST CONSIDERATION.

Therefore the prime consideration at the start is properly to locate the lot with these ideas in view; and ascertain the conditions existing in the immediate vicinity as to building.

These facts can be gleaned from all reliable real estate dealers and the wise individual will continue these studies by personal investigations on the prospective spot where he would build his home.

Since many of the costs given out generally are too low and deceiving—and besides are intended to be read by people in all localities—costs cannot be given on a certain scale that may be effective in all locations, and, perhaps, in all the States of the Union. The cost of material and labor varies sometimes even in adjoining towns.

Besides, the number of buildings being erected at the time, the competition among builders and material yards, the distance from railroad stations, the nature of the grounds and the improvements or lack of them, all have a bearing on the cost of a house.

A man having $1,000 cash can buy within easy reach of New York a fifty-foot lot costing from $400 to $600, according to the amount he can safely pay each month on the whole proposition.

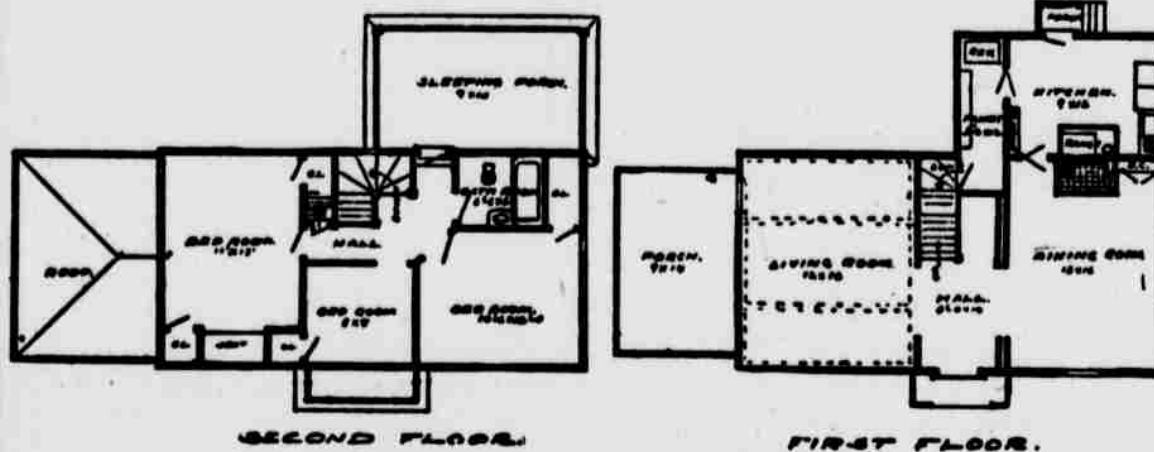

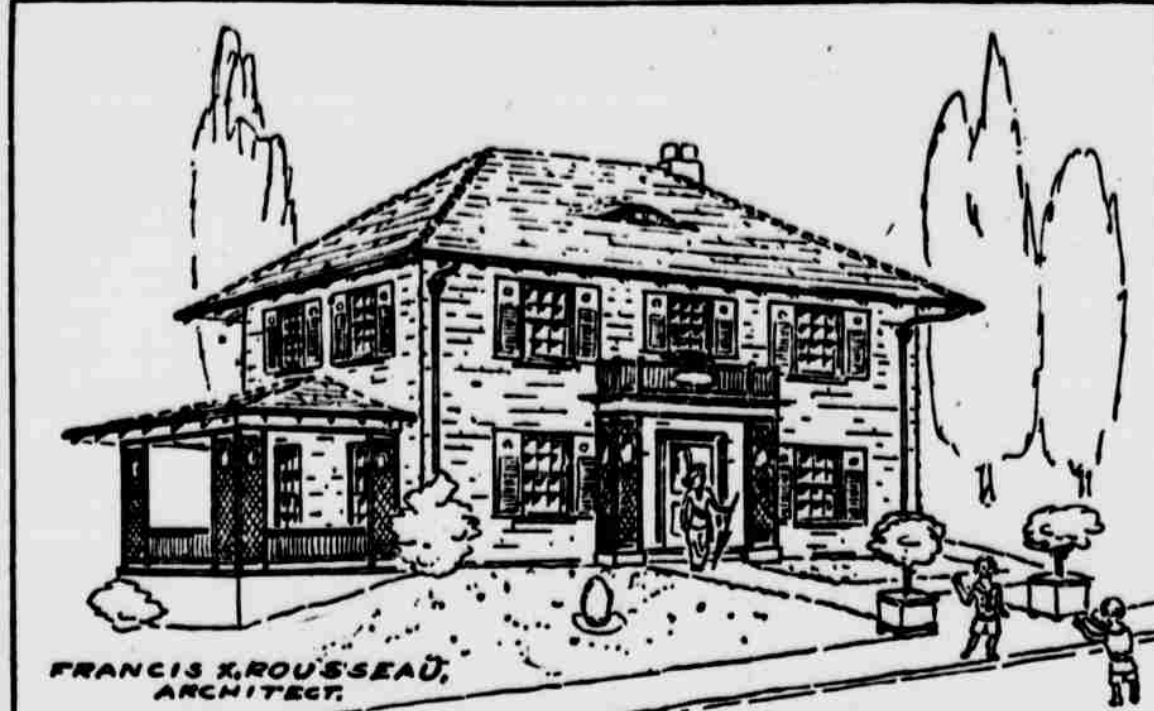

HOUSE NO. 1 CONTAINING MANY INNOVATIONS.

The total cost of this house, built according to the following specifications and in the vicinity of New York City, including mason work, carpentry, plumbing, hot water heating, lighting fixtures and hardware, is $4,000 exclusive of ground.

Wood frame construction with sheathed and shingled exterior walls, shingled roof, brick foundation walls and chimney, cement cellar floor, hardwood floors at first and second stories, cypress trimmings throughout with painted or varnished finish, wide open staircase, sliding doors between hall and living room and column opening at entrance to living room, mantle in living room and open fireplace in dining room with brick factor and hearth, plate shelf around dining room, base and picture moulding in all rooms, large china closet in the kitchen, large kitchen closet containing six shelves, space for refrigerator with floor drain and door to cellar stairs, cast iron enameled sink with wood drain board, absorbent wash trays, a standard make of range with large oven, 40 gallons hot water boiler, cement hearth underneath range.

All interior walls and ceilings plastered with three coats of plaster. Bathroom fixtures, full size and of a standard make, solid porcelain tank, closet in each bedroom provided with shelf and coat hanger pole. Attic stairs opening into hall.

A few of the special features in this house are: The central hall on the first floor, with opposite openings to dining and living rooms and staircase at rear; door from kitchen to dining room, eliminating the long distance between kitchen and dining table that is a feature of many parlors as placed in many houses; the large kitchen closet, containing all that is required for the kitchen work in one room instead of two, as is generally the case where separate spaces are provided for kitchen closet and pantry; the sink placed near range; the seat alcove in main bedroom, with storage space underneath, giving the appearance of a bay window, and the sleeping porch over the kitchen.

The size of the house, exclusive of porch, is 12x17 feet; the kitchen extension, 9x16 feet; the entire front, including porch, is 41 feet.

SEEKS MISSING HUSBAND.

Brooklyn Man Went for Groceries and Failed to Return.

Mrs. Anna Taft of No. 635 St. Ann's avenue, the Bronx, called at the Bronx office of The Evening World to-day to ask for assistance in locating her husband, William H. Taft, if he is still alive. The woman is fearful that her husband may have killed himself, for he was out of work and dependent, but if he is still among the living she and his three little children are anxious to see him again.

Mrs. Taft is destitute and almost frantic with worry. He left the house on the morning of July 4. He had $1 in his pocket and was to have bought groceries for the week. He did not return and Mrs. Taft found later that he had not gone to the grocery store.

SHOPLIFTER GETS LIMIT.

Girl Convicted Twice Before Will Serve Two Years.

Grace Nelson, a rather striking young woman who lives at No. 37 West Thirty-ninth street, received the heaviest sentence for shoplifting at the hands of Justice Forster, Kernochan and Collins of Special Sessions to-day that has been imposed by that court in years. She got two years in the Penitentiary on Blackwell's Island. She had two prior convictions for shoplifting. When last arrested in a Broadway department store she had a silk dress, some silk hose and ties hidden under her skirts.

Mrs. Walsh claims $1,000 from the captain's, $500 from the lieutenant's, $500 from the sergeant's and $500 from the patrolman's association. Capt. Walsh joined the Patrolmen's Association in 1901 and became a member of the others as he rose in rank. It is said that some years ago the Supreme Court held that associations were not liable for the payment of widows' shares in cases where policemen were dismissed from the force, but, despite the decision, the organizations have made payments to widows irrespective of dismissal.

According to Mrs. Walsh, from the time Capt. Walsh made his confession to the District Attorney he was shunned and antagonized by his former friends and associates in the department. Their attitude did not change at his death and has not changed toward his widow. No representative of any of the associations was at the funeral. It has been the custom of the associations to send delegates to the homes of deceased members to offer immediate assistance and to arrange to pay association benefits.

NEGRO BURGLAR HANGS FROM WINDOW LEDGE AS SCORES LOOK ON Captured at Muzzle of Gun After Hard Fight With Policemen.

Scores of people in the neighborhood of One Hundred and Forty-eighth and One Hundred and Forty-seventh streets and St. Nicholas and Convent avenues were aroused early this morning by the shrill blowing of police whistles. The janitor of an apartment in One Hundred and Forty-eighth street had seen a negro hanging by his hands from the rear parlor window of Mrs. Mary E. Hodgman's home at No. 435 West One Hundred and Forty-seventh street and had called Policemen Healy, Storm, Doran and Powers of West One Hundred and Fifty-second street station.

While the policemen searched the yards scores of men and women peered from windows and every now and then the cry would be raised.

"There he is, close to that fence!"

But for more than an hour the policeman searched without success until at last Healy came on the negro crouched behind a big rose bush in the yard of No. 435 West One Hundred and Forty-seventh street. As the policeman approached him the man sprang up and ran and he put up a hard fight when Healy overtook and collared him.

Doran, Powers and Storm came up and after a battle in which all the policeman had to take part, they overpowered the negro and led him through an apartment house to the street.

Three he renewed the fight and knocked two of the policemen down on a sidewalk. Healy was on his feet again quickly and shoved his revolver against the negro's teeth.

blow the top of your head off," threatened Healy.

The gun subdued the negro. He was taken to the station and later to Police Headquarters. He said his name was James Brown and that he was a longshoreman. He refused to tell where he lived or to answer any other question.

The finger print records showed that as Nathaniel J. Humphrey he had served a year in the penitentiary for receiving stolen goods and had been released a few months ago. The police believe that Brown is the man who has been terrorizing the Washington Heights section. There have been many reports of a negro burglar in that section.
